Program Design

Upon joining TTI, an academic advisor contacts the student to schedule a 1st appointment meeting (via Zoom or in person) to design a personalized degree plan. The advisor begins by charting the first 60 credits of exams which may include 40 credits from the student's seminary year. Upon earning 60 credits, the next step is to apply and enroll at Woodmont College. Students then begin working on the 30 credit residency requirement at Woodmont. This consists of 10 self-paced, online courses in Judaic Studies (3 credits each). The degree is completed by taking an additional 30 credits of exams. Included within the plan are the core requirements, ie English Composition, Math, Social Sciences and Natural Sciences, as well as any necessary prerequisite courses for the student's graduate study of choice.
